HOW THE BEDOUINS CONQUER THIRST.

In an article on "The Rescue of Chinese Gordon," General R. E. Col- One attraction at a time is enough. ston, late of the Egyptian General Staff, says: "In the 'Waterless Land,' water says: "In the 'Waterless Land,' water is the paramount question. If it be asked how a large body of Bedouins like the ten thousand who nearly destroyed the Brifish squares at Tamai manage to subsist, the reason is plain. In the first place, they do not need the enormous trains required for a European army. They are the most abstemious of men. Each man carries askin of water and a small hag of grain. skin of water and a small bag of grain skin of water and a small bag of grain, procured by purchase or barter from caravans. Their camels and goals move along with them, supplying them with milk and meat, and subsiting upon the scanty herbage and the foliage of the thorny mimosa, growing in secluded wadies. These people could live upon the increase of their flocks alone which they exchange readily for other commodities; but being the exclusive carriers and guides for all the travel and commerce that cross their to testify in his libel suit against the travel and commerce that cross their eleserts, they realize yearly large amounts of money. As to water they know every nook and hollow in the mountains, away from the trails, where shady ravine, and they can scat-ter, every man for himself, to fill their water-skins. On my first exposition mear the close of the three years' drought, I reached some wells on which I was depending, and found them entirely dry. It was several days to the next wells. But my Bedouin guides knew some natural reservoirs in the hills about six miles off. So they took the water camels at night-fall, and came back before daylight with the water-skins filled. An invading army would find it hard to obtain guides, and if they did, they must keep together, and could not leave the line of march to look for water. The Boston Journal challenged the Boston Globe to show when and where men. Mr. Blaine called immigrants of any "convicts and felons. The Globe at once accepted this challenge. It first proved by Mr. Blaine's biographer that he was editor of the Kennebec Journal in 1854-5. Blaine's biography says.
"Mr. Blaine continued in the editorial chair as before * * He never released his hold on the editorial pen. The rapidly following events of the time gave him great scope. Every-thing bore on politics, and from the torrent of living English which he poured out at that time I take a bright spray from his issue of February, 14, red. Perhaps it was blackened by drinking iron water.

Then the Globe extracts the following from Blaine's paper of January 8, 1855: "We need more stringent laws to regulate immigration from Europe, and faithful officers to administer them. If present abuses are not corrected, and corrected speedily, we shall become worse than Botany Bay—in fact, we are worse now, for we have little doubt that more criminals reach us from Great Britain in a single year than were ever years. And these convicts and felons It has never been charged, we behave hardly got our dust upon their lieve, that Blaine is not the author of feet before they are allowed to vote and the Mulligan letters. control our elections."

Dear Sir: You ask my opinion of Compound Oxygen in regard to its efficiency as a healing remedy, and I am glait to be able to reply that I have the greatest faith in it. Several vera sage, when laboring under very serious trouble within my throut and lunga, at the Instance of a fread in Boston, who had been similarly affected, I began the use of the Oxygen—began without much faith, but the result was such that I am prepared to recommend its use to all persons similarly affected. At the end of live months I found myself a well man, and ever since I have also several fluely improved Farms in Lafayette County for anle, and as many Houses and Lots in Missouri, some of which can be bought at a great bargain. Now is the me, as prices are tending a liver before. It seemed in my case to strike at the root of the disease and reform the whole system. I will recommend no patent nostrum of any kind, but I deem it a duty to the man, afflicted with lung trouble in this country to recommend to them the Oxygen. Perseveringly and continuously used it works wonders.
